THE BIBLE SPEAKS TO BOYS

The longer I'm at camp the more I believe that the Bible has a word that gives guidance to life. In the coming year's newsletters, we plan to share a few of the scripture passages that are meaningful here at Allegany Boys Camp. Hopefully as we share the Bible and thoughts about how scripture gives guidance for our ministry to boys and families you will be inspired as we have been.

One such scripture is Jeremiah 6:16. "Thus saith the Lord, Stand ye in the ways and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your soul."

Many of the families we serve are very stressed out by life's extreme challenges regarding their son. Camp is a place for a boy and family to stop and evaluate: what is the problem? What is the "good way"? What would it take for our family to have peace, a "rest for your soul"? As these questions are considered at camp, we usually discover that the "old paths" are actually the "good way".

"Old paths" such asboys learning the importance of hard work, "old paths" like boys developing a respect for authority, "old paths" like boys learning the importance of personal responsibility, these "old paths" sure are meaningful for life in 2020.

Another thought from this scripture is what does it mean to walk "in the old paths"? At camp we don't just talk about the above values, but also learn to do them. Each day at camp we learn to practice responsibility, respect, and relationships. Really, what good is talking about what's right if you don't actually do what's right?

This week we enrolled a new boy at camp and in discussion with the boy and his family, his mom expressed her desire for peace, or as Jeremiah says, "rest," in her family. When we practice principles of scripture, we can have "rest" in our families even in challenging times of life in 2020.
